MISCELLANEOUS.

January.

Juvenilia.

Earn well the thrifty months, nor wed
Raw Haste, half-sister to Delay.

Love Thou Thy Land.

Juvenilia.

January 1.

MEN.

When first the world began,
Young Nature thro' five cycles ran,
And in the sixth she moulded man.

She gave him mind, the lordliest
Proportion, and, above the rest,
Dominion in the head and breast.

The Two Voices.

WOMEN.

Women smile with saint-like glances
Like thine own mother's. . . .

Mild deep eyes upraised, that knew
The beauty and repose of faith,
And the clear spirit shining thro'.

Supposed Confessions.

January 2.

MEN.

He that shuts Love out, in turn shall be Shut out from Love, and on her threshold lie

Juvenilia.

Howling in outer darkness. Not for this
Was common clay ta'en from the common earth,
Moulded by God, and temper'd with the tears
Of angels to the perfect shape of man.

Lines to —

WOMEN.

She has a lovely face;
God in His mercy lend her grace.

The Lady of Shalott.

January 3.

MEN.

The years with change advance;
If I make dark my countenance
I shut my life from happier chance.

The Two Voices.

WOMEN.

Eyes not down-dropt nor over-bright, but fed
With the clear-pointed flame of chastity,
Clear, without heat, undying, tended by Pure vestal thoughts in the translucent fane

Juvenilia.

Of her still-spirit; locks not wide-dispread,
Madonna-wise on either side her head;
Sweet lips whereon perpetually did reign
The summer calm of golden charity,
Were fixed shadows of thy fixed mood.
Revered Isabel, the crown and head,
The stately flower of female fortitude,
Of perfect wifehood and pure lowlihead.

Isabel.

January 4.

MEN.

Tho' I should die, I know
That all about the thorn will blow
In tufts of rosy-tinted snow;
And men, thro' novel spheres of thought
Still moving after truth long sought,
Will learn new things when I am not.

The Two Voices.

WOMEN.

The intuitive decision of a bright
And thorough-edged intellect to part
Error from crime; a prudence to withhold;
The laws of marriage character'd in gold

Juvenilia.

Upon the blanched tablets of her heart;
A love still burning upward, giving light
To read those laws; an accent very low
In blandishment, but a most silver flow
Of subtle-paced counsel in distress,
Right to the heart and brain, tho' undescried,
Winning its way with extreme gentleness
Thro' all the outworks of suspicious pride;
A courage to endure and to obey,
A hate of gossip-parlance, and of sway
. . . Thro' all her placid life
The queen of marriage, a most perfect wife.

Isabel.

January 5.

MEN.

Wide in soul and bold of tongue . . .
. . . I sung the joyful Pæan clear,
Waiting to strive a happy strife,
To war with falsehood to the knife,
And not to lose the good of life . . .
. . . To search through all I felt or saw,
The springs of life, the depths of awe,
And reach the law within the law;

Juvenilia.

At least, not rotting like a weed,
But, having sown some generous seed
Fruitful of further thought and deed, . . .
. . . In some good cause, not in mine own
To perish, wept for, honor'd, known
And like a warrior overthrown.

The Two Voices

WOMEN.

Faithful, gentle, good,
Wearing the rose of womanhood.

The Two Voices.

January 6.

MEN.

Some have striven
Achieving calm, to whom was given
The joy that mixes man with Heaven;
Who, rowing hard against the stream,
Saw distant gates of Eden gleam. . . .
. . . Which did accomplish their desire,
Bore and forebore, and did not tire,
Like Stephen, an unquenched fire.

The Two Voices

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

She, as her carol sadder grew,
From brow and bosom slowly down
Thro' rosy taper fingers drew
Her streaming curls of deepest brown
To left and right, and made appear
Still-lighted in a secret shrine,
Her melancholy eyes, divine,
The home of woe without a tear.

Mariana In the South.

January 7.

MEN.

It is man's privilege to doubt,
If so be that from doubt at length,
Truth may stand forth unmoved of change
An image with profulgent brows.

Supposed Confessions.

WOMEN.

Thrice happy state again to be
The trustful infant on the knee!
Who lets his rosy fingers play
About his mother's neck, and knows
Nothing beyond his mother's eyes.

Juvenilia.

. . . Would that my gloomed fancy were
As thine, my mother, when with brows
Propt on thy knees, my hands upheld
In thine, I listened to thy vows,
For me outpour'd in holiest prayer.

Supposed Confessions.

January 8.

MEN.

With a half-glance upon the sky
At night he said, "The wanderings
Of this most intricate Universe
Teach me the nothingness of things."
Yet could not all creation pierce
Beyond the bottom of his eye.

A Character.

WOMEN.

Thou are not steep'd in golden languors,
No tranced summer calm is thine,
. . . Thro' light and shadow thou dost range,
Sudden glances, sweet and strange,
Delicious spites and darling angers,
And airy forms of flitting change.

Madeline.

Juvenilia.

January 9.

MEN.

He spake of beauty; that the dull
Saw no divinity in grass,
Life in dead stones, or spirits in air;
Then looking as 'twere in a glass,
He smooth'd his chin and sleek'd his hair,
And said the earth was beautiful.

He spake of virtue, not the gods
More purely, when they wish to charm
Pallas and Juno sitting by;
And with a sweeping of the arm
And a lack-lustre dead-blue eye
Devolved his rounded periods.

A Character.

WOMEN.

A happy bridesmaid makes a happy bride.

The Bridesmaid.

January 10.

MEN.

Most delicately hour by hour
He canvass'd human mysteries,
And trod on silk, as if the winds
Blew his own praises in his eyes,

Juvenilia.

And stood aloof from other minds
In impotence of fancied power.

A Character.

WOMEN.

Smiling, frowning, evermore,
Thou art perfect in love-lore.

Revealings deep and clear are thine
Of wealthy smiles; but who may know
Whether smile or frown be fleeter?
Whether smile or frown be sweeter,
Who may know?

Frowns perfect-sweet along the brow
Light-glooming over eyes divine,
Like little clouds, sun-fringed, are thine,
Ever varying Madeline.

Madeline.

January II.

MEN.

With lips depress'd as he were meek,
Himself unto himself he sold;
Upon himself himself did feed;
Quiet, dispassionate, and cold,
And other than his form of creed,
With chisell'd features clear and sleek.

A Character.

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

Thy smile and frown are not aloof
From one another,
Each to each is dearest brother;
Hues of the silken sheeny woof
Momently shot into each other.
All the mystery is thine,
Smiling, frowning, evermore,
Thou art perfect in love-lore,
Ever varying Madeline.

Madeline.

January 12.

MEN.

Deliver not the tasks of might
To weakness, neither hide the ray
From those, not blind, who wait for day,
Tho' sitting girt with doubtful light.
Make knowledge circle with the winds;
But let her herald, Reverence, fly
Before her to whatever sky
Bear seeds of men and growth of minds.

Love Thou Thy Land.

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

You care not for another's pains,
Because you are the soul of joy,
Bright metal all without alloy
Life shoots and glances thro' your veins,
And flashes off a thousand ways,
Thro' lips and eyes in subtle rays.

Rosalind.

January 13.

MEN.

The poet in a golden clime was born,
With golden stars above;
Dower'd with the hate of hate, the scorn of scorn,
The love of love.
He saw thro' life and death, thro' good and ill,
He saw thro' his own soul,
The marvel of the everlasting will
An open scroll.

The Poet.

WOMEN.

A maid, whose stately brow
The dew-impearled winds of dawn have kiss'd.

Ode to Memory.

Juvenilia.

January 14.

MEN.

Watch what main-currents draw the years;
Cut Prejudice against the grain;
But gentle words are always gain.

Love Thou Thy Land.

WOMEN.

O sweet, pale Margaret,
O rare, pale Margaret.

What lit your eyes with tearful power,
Like moonlight on a falling shower?
Who lent you, love, your mortal dower
Of pensive thought and aspect pale,
Your melancholy sweet and frail
As perfume of the cuckoo-flower?
From the westward-winding flood,
From the evening-lighted wood,
From all things outward you have won
A tearful grace, as tho' you stood
Between the rainbow and the sun.
The very smile before you speak
That dimples your transparent cheek,
Encircles all the heart. . . .

Margaret.

Juvenilia.

January 15.

MEN.

Regard the weakness of thy peers;
Nor toil for title, place, or touch
Of pension, neither count on praise;
It grows to guerdon after-days;
Nor deal in watch-words over much.

Not clinging to some ancient saw;
Nor master'd by some modern term;
Not swift nor slow to change, but firm;
And in its season bring the law.

Love Thou Thy Land.

WOMEN.

You love, remaining peacefully,
To hear the murmur of the strife,
But enter not the toil of life.
Your spirit is the calmed sea,
Laid by the tumult of the fight.
You are the evening star, alway
Remaining betwixt dark and light;
Lull'd echoes of laborious day
Come to you, gleams of mellow light
Float by you on the verge of night.

Margaret.

Juvenilia.

January 16.

MEN.

If New and Old, disastrous feud,
Must ever shock, like armed foes,
And this be true, till Time shall close,
That Principles are rain'd in blood.

Not yet; the wise of heart would cease
To hold his hope thro' shame and guilt;
But with his hand against the hilt
Would pace the troubled land, like Peace
Not less, tho' dogs of Faction bay,
Would serve his kind in deed and word,
Certain, if knowledge bring the sword,
That knowledge takes the sword away.

Love Thou Thy Land.

WOMEN.

Served by man and maid
She felt her heart grow prouder.

The Goose.

January 17.

MEN.

Vex not thou the poet's mind
With thy shallow wit:
Vex not thou the poet's mind;

Juvenilia.

For thou canst not fathom it.
Clear and bright it should be ever,
Flowing like a crystal river;
Bright as light, and clear as wind.

The Poet's Mind.

WOMEN.

Whence that aery bloom of thine,
Like a lily which the sun
Looks thro' in his sad decline,
And a rose-bush leans upon.
Thou that faintly smilest still,
As a Naiad in a well,
Looking at the set of day.
Or a phantom two hours old
Of a maiden past away,
Ere the placid lips be cold?
Wherefore those faint smiles of thine,
Spiritual Adeline?

Adeline.

January 18.

MEN.

To-morrow yet would reap to-day,
As we bear blossom of the dead;
Earn well the thrifty months, nor wed
Raw Haste, half-sister to Delay.

Love Thou Thy Land.

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

Mystery of mysteries,
Faintly smiling Adeline,
Scarce of earth nor all divine.
Nor unhappy, nor at rest,
But beyond expression fair
With thy floating, flaxen hair.
Thy rose-lips and full blue eyes
Take the heart from out my breast.
Wherefore those dim looks of thine,
Shadowy, dreaming Adeline?

Adeline.

January 19.

MEN.

Looking upward, full of grace,
He pray'd and from a happy place
God's glory smote him on the face.

The Two Voices.

WOMEN.

What hope or fear or joy is thine?
Who talketh with thee, Adeline?
For sure thou art not all alone.
Do beating hearts of salient springs
Keep measure with thine own?

Juvenilia.

Hast thou heard the butterflies
What they say betwixt their wings?
Or in stillest evening
With what voice the violet woos
To his heart the silver dews?
Or when little airs arise
How the mossy bluebell rings
To the mosses underneath?
Hast thou look'd upon the breath
Of the lilies at sunrise?
Wherefore that faint smile of thine,
Shadowy, dreamy, Adeline?

Adeline.

January 20.

MEN.

Forerun thy peers, thy time . . .
'Twere better not to breathe or speak
Than cry for strength, remaining weak.

The Two Voices.

WOMEN.

How many full-sail'd verse express,
How many measured words adore
The full-flowing harmony

Juvenilia.

Of thy swan-like stateliness.
The luxuriant symmetry
Of thy floating gracefulness.
For in thee
Is nothing sudden, nothing single
Like two streams of incense free.
From one censer in one shrine,
Thought and motion mingle,
Mingle ever. Motions flow
To one another, even as tho'
They were modulated so
To an unheard melody
Which lives about thee. . . .

Eleanore.

January 21.

MEN.

Why suffers human life so soon eclipse?
For I could burst into a psalm of praise.
Seeing the heart so wondrous in her ways,
E'en scorn looks beautiful on human lips!
I thank Thee, God, that Thou hast made me live.

Life.

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

Thy woes are birds of passage, transitory.
Thy spirit circled with a living glory.

Lasting Sorrow.

January 22.

MEN.

Clear-headed friend, whose joyful scorn,
Edged with sharp laughter, cuts atwain
The knots that tangle human creeds,
The wounding cords that bind and strain
The heart until it bleeds.

Ray-fringed eyelids of the moon

Roof not a glance so keen as thine.

To —

WOMEN.

The form, the form alone is eloquent!
A nobler yearning never broke her rest.
Than but to dance and sing, be gayly drest,
And win all eyes with all accomplishments.
For ah! the slight coquette, she cannot love.
And if you kiss'd her feet a thousand years
She still would take the praise and care no more.

Poland.

Juvenilia.

January 23.

MEN.

The gardener Adam and his wife
Smile at the claims of long descent.
Howe'er it be, it seems to me,
'Tis only noble to be good.
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood.

Lady Clara Vere de Vere.

WOMEN.

A lady. . . .
Stillier than chisell'd marble,
A daughter of the gods, divinely tall,
And most divinely fair.

A Dream of Fair Women.

January 24.

MEN.

Thou art no sabbath-drawler of old saws,
Distill'd from some worm-canker'd homily;
But spurr'd at heart with fireiest energy
To embattail and to wall about thy cause
With iron-worded proof.

To J. M. K.

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control,
These three alone lead life to sovereign power.

Yet not for power! Power of herself
Would come uncall'd for! But to live by law.
Acting the law we live by without fear;
And, because right is right, to follow right
Were wisdom in the scorn of consequence.

Ænone

January 25.

MEN.

Who that knew him could forget
The busy wrinkles round his eyes?
The slow, wise smile that, round about
His dusty forehead dryly curl'd,
Seem'd half-within and half-without
And full of dealing with the world.

I see his gray eyes twinkle yet
At his own jest — gray eyes lit up
With summer lightnings of a soul
So full of summer warmth, so glad,
So healthy, sound, and clear and whole.

The Miller's Daughter.

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

A simple maiden in her flower
Is worth a hundred coats-of-arms.

Lady Clara Vere de Vere.

January 26.

MEN.

Weak Truth a-leaning on her crutch,
Wan, wasted Truth in her utmost need
Thy kingly intellect shall feed,
Until she be an athlete bold.

Lines to —

WOMEN.

Merry brides are we:
We will kiss sweet kisses, and speak sweet words.

The Sea-Fairies.

January 27.

MEN.

Wild words wander here and there:
God's great gift of speech abused
Makes thy memory confused.

A Dirge.

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

When I see thee roam with tresses unconfined,
While the amorous, odorous wind
Breathes low between the sunset and the moon;

Or, in a shadowy saloon,
On silken cushions half reclined,
I watch thy grace, and in its place
My heart a charm'd slumber keeps,
While I muse upon thy face.

Eleanore

January 28.

MEN.

Mine be the power which ever to its sway
Will win the wise at once, and by degrees
May into uncongenial spirits flow:
Ev'n as the warm gulf-stream of Florida
Floats far away into the Northern seas
The lavish growths of southern Mexico.

To J. M. K.

WOMEN.

A thousand claims to reverence closed
In her as Mother, Wife. . . .

To the Queen.

Juvenilia.

January 29.

MEN.

Whatever crazy sorrow saith
No life that breathes with human breath
Has ever truly long'd for death.
'Tis life, whereof our nerves are scant,
Oh life, not death, for which we pant;
More life, and fuller

The Two Voices.

WOMEN.

It is the miller's daughter
And she has grown so dear so dear,
That I would be the jewel
That trembles in her ear.
For hid in ringlets day and night
I'd touch her neck so warm and white.
And I would be the girdle
About her dainty, dainty waist,
And her heart would beat against me
In sorrow and in rest;
And I should know if it beat right,
I'd clasp it round so close and tight.

The Miller's Daughter.

Juvenilia.

January 30.

MEN.

Why not believe? . . . Why not . . .
Anchor thy frailty there, where man
Hath moor'd and rested?

Supposed Confessions.

WOMEN.

Beauty, good and knowledge, are three sisters
That dote upon each other, friends to man,
Living together under the same roof,
And never can be sunder'd without tears.

Lines to —

January 31.

MEN.

Shall we not look into the laws
Of life and death, and things that seem
And things that be, analyze
Our double nature, and compare
All creeds till we have found the one? .

Supposed Confessions.

Juvenilia.

WOMEN.

Some honey-converse feeds thy mind,
Some spirit of a crimson rose
In love with thee forgets to close
His curtains, wasting odorous sighs
All night long on darkness blind.
What aileth thee? Whom waitest thou
With thy soften'd shadow'd brow,
And those dew-lit eyes of thine
Thou faint smiler?

Adeline.

February.

English Idyls and other Poems.

As the husband is, the wife is. . . .

Locksley Hall

English Idyls and other Poems.

February 1.

MEN.

A little thing may harm a wounded man.
Morte D'Arthur.

WOMEN.

You could not light upon a sweeter thing;
A body slight and round, and like a pear
In growing, modest eyes, a hand, a foot
Lessening in perfect cadence, and a skin
As clean and white as privet when its flowers.
Walking to the Mail.

February 2.

MEN.

This is a shameful thing for man to lie.
Morte D'Arthur.

WOMEN.

Like a girl
Valuing the giddy pleasures of the eyes.
Morte D'Arthur.

English Idyls and other Poems.

February 3.

MEN.

Obedience is the bond of rule.

Morte D'Arthur.

WOMEN.

A certain miracle of symmetry,
A miniature of loveliness, all grace
Summ'd up and closed in little: —

Juliet, she

So light of foot, so light of spirit.

The Gardener's Daughter.

February 4.

MEN.

Vague desires, like fitful blasts of balm
To one that travels quickly, made the air
Of Life delicious, and all kinds of thought,
That verged upon them, sweeter than the dream

Dream'd by a happy man, when the dark
East

Unseen, is brightening to his bridal morn.

The Gardener's Daughter.

English Idyls and other Poems.

WOMEN.

Eyes

Darker than darkest pansies, and hair
More black than ash buds in the front of March.

The Gardener's Daughter.

February 5.

MEN.

He might have sat for Hercules;
So muscular he spread, so broad of breast.

The Gardener's Daughter.

WOMEN.

Up the porch there grew an Eastern rose,
That, flowering high, the last night's gale had caught
And blown across the walk. One arm aloft, Gown'd in pure white, that fitted to the shape,
Holding the bush, to fix it back, she stood,
A single stream of all her soft brown hair
Pour'd on one side, the shadow of the flowers
Stole all the golden gloss, and, wavering
Lovingly lower, trembled on her waist.

English Idyls and other Poems.

Ah, happy shade — and still went moving down.

But, ere it touch'd a foot, that might have danced

The greensward into greener circles, dipt,
And mixed with shadow of the common ground.

The Gardener's Daughter,

February 6.

MEN.

Well his words became him; was he not
A full-cell'd honeycomb of eloquence Stored from all flowers?

Edwin Morris.

WOMEN.

The full day dwelt on her brows, and sunn'd
Her violet eyes, and all her Hebe bloom,
And doubled his own warmth against her lips,

And on the bounteous wave of such a breast
As never pencil drew. Half light, half shade,

She stood, a sight to make an old man young.

The Gardener's Daughter.

English Idyls and other Poems.

February 7.

MEN.

More thing are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice
Rise like a fountain for me night and day.
For what are men better than sheep or goats
That nourish a blind life within the brain,
If, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer
Both for themselves and those who call them friend?
For so the whole round earth is every way
Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.

Morte D'Arthur.

WOMEN.

She looked; but all
Suffused with blushes — neither self-possessed
Nor startled, but betwixt this mood and that,
Divided in a graceful quiet.

The Gardener's Daughter.

English Idyls and other Poems.

February 8.

MEN.

Nature brings not back the Mastodon,
. . . . And why should any man
Remodel models?

Morte D' Arthur.

WOMEN.

The greatest gift,
A woman's heart.

The Gardener's Daughter.

February 9.

MEN.

He
Vex'd with a morbid devil in his blood
'That veil'd the world with jaundice, hid his face
From all men, and communing with himself,
He lost the sense that handles daily life —
That keeps us all in order more or less.

Walking to the Mail.

WOMEN.

She was sharper than an eastern wind,
And all my heart turned from her, as a thorn
Turns from the sun.

Audley Court.

English Idyls and other Poems.

February 10.

MEN.

Like men, like manners; like breeds like,
they say,
Kind nature is the best; those manners next
That fit us like a nature second-hand;
Which are indeed the manners of the great.

Walking to the Mail.

WOMEN.

I take it, God made the woman for the man,
And for the good and increase of the world.
A pretty face is well, and this is well,
To have a dame indoors, that trims us up
And keeps us tight.

Edwin Morris.

February 11.

MEN.

Man is made of solid stuff.

Edwin Morris.

WOMEN.

I would have hid her needle in my heart,
To save her little finger from a scratch

English Idyls and other Poems.

No deeper than the skin; my ears could hear
Her lightest breath; her least remark was worth
The experience of the wise.

Edwin Morris.

February 12.

MEN.

What know we of the secrets of a man?

Edwin Morris.

WOMEN.

Light as any wind that blows
So fleetly did she stir,
The flower, she touch'd on, dipt and rose,
And turn'd to look at her.

The Talking Oak.

February 13

MEN.

Sir, you know
That these two parties still divide the world —
Of those that want and those that have.

Walking to the Mail.

English Idyls and other Poems.

WOMEN.

As the husband is, the wife is, thou art mated with a clown
And the grossness of his nature will have weight to drag thee down.

Locksley Hall.

February 14.

MEN.

He knew the names,
Long learned names of agaric, moss and fern,
Who forged a thousand theories of the rocks.
. . . I call'd him Crichton, for he seem'd
All-perfect, finish'd to the finger nail.

Edwin Morris.

WOMEN.

Sweetly did she speak and move,
Such a one do I remember, whom to look at was to love.

Locksley Hall.

English Idyls and other Poems.

February 15.

MEN.

Wait and Love himself will bring
The drooping flower of knowledge changed to fruit
Of wisdom. Wait: My faith is large in Time,
And that which shapes it to some perfect end.
Will some one say, Then why not ill for good?
Why took ye not your pastime? To that man
My work shall answer, since I knew the right
And did it; for a man is not as God,
But then most Godlike being most a man.

Love and Duty.

WOMEN.

On her pallid cheek and forehead came a color and a light
As I have seen the rosy red flushing in the northern night.
And she turn'd — her bosom shaken with a sudden storm of sighs
All the spirit deeply dawning in the dark of hazel eyes.

Locksley Hall.

English Idyls and other Poems.

February 16.

MEN.

Farewell, like endless welcome, lived and died.

Then follow'd counsel, comfort, and the words

That make a man feel strong in speaking truth.

Love and Duty.

WOMEN.

Her constant beauty doth inform Stillness with love, and day with light.

The Day Dream.

February 17.

MEN.

I am a part of all that I have met;
Yet all experience is an arch where thro'
Gleams that untravel'd world, whose margin fades

Forever and forever when I move.

How dull it is to pause, to make an end

To rust unburnish'd not to shine in use!

Ulysses.

English Idyls and other Poems.

WOMEN.

Love, if thy tresses be so dark,
How dark those hidden eyes must be.

The Day Dream.

February 18.

MEN.

Old age hath yet his honor and his toil;
Death closes all; but something ere the end,
Some work of noble note, may yet be done,
Not unbecoming men that strove with Gods.

Ulysses.

WOMEN.

On her lover's arm she leant,
And round her waist she felt it fold,
And far across the hills they went
In that new world which is the old.
Across the hills and far away,
Beyond this utmost purple rim,
And deep into the dying day
The happy princess followed him.

Day Dreams.

English Idyls and other Poems.

February 19.

MEN.

Why should a man desire in any way
To vary from the kindly race of men,
Or pass beyond the goal of ordinance
Where all should pause, as is most meet for all?

Tithonus.

WOMEN.

Go, look in any glass and say,
What moral is in being fair.
Oh, to what uses shall we put
The wild weed flower that simply blows?
And is there any moral shut
Within the bosom of the rose?

The Day Dream.

February 20.

MEN.

Make me feel the wild pulsation that I felt before the strife,
When I heard my days before me, and the tumult of my life.

English Idyls and other Poems.

Yearning for the large excitement that the coming years would yield,
Eager-hearted as a boy when first he leaves his father's field.
And his spirit leaps within him to be gone before him then
. . . In among the throngs of men.
Men, my brothers, men the workers, ever reaping something new;
That which they have done but earnest of the things that they shall do.

I doubt not thro' the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widen'd with the process of the suns.

English Idyls and other Poems.

What is that to him that reaps not harvest of his youthful joys, Tho' the deep heart of existence beats forever like a boy's
Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers . . .
And the individual withers, and the world is more and more.
Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers, and he bears a laden breast
Full of sad experience, moving toward the stillness of his rest.

English Idyls and other Poems.

WOMEN.

Since the time when Adam first
Embraced his Eve in happy hour,
And every bird of Eden burst
In carol, every bud to flower,
What eyes, like thine, have waken'd hopes;
What lips, like thine, so sweetly form'd?
Where on the double rosebud droops
The fulness of the pensive mind.

The Day Dream.

February 23.

MEN.

Oh, Nature first was fresh to man,
And wanton without measure;
So youthful and so flexile then,
You moved her at your pleasure.
Now, I must work thro' months of toil,
And years of cultivation,
Upon my proper patch of soil,
To grow my own plantation.
I'll take the showers as they fall,
I will not vex my bosom.
Enough if at the end of all
A little garden blossom.

I had hope, by something rare
To prove myself a poet,
But while I plan and plan, my hair
Is gray before I know it.
So fares it since the years began
Till they be gather'd up;

English Idyls and other Poems.

The truth, that flies the flowing can,
Will haunt the vacant cup;
And other's follies teach us not,
Nor much their wisdom teaches;
And most, of sterling worth, is what
Our own experience preaches.

WOMEN.

A maiden of our century, yet most meek:
A daughter of our meadows, yet not coarse:

English Idyls and Other Poems.

Straight, but as lissome as a hazel wand:
Her eyes a bashful azure, and her hair
In gloss and hue the chestnut, when the

WOMEN.

She — so lowly-lovely and so loving,
Queenly responsive when the loyal hand
Rose from the clay it work'd in as she past,
Not sowing hedgerow texts and passing by,
Nor dealing goodly counsel from a height
That makes the lowest hate it, but a voice
Of comfort and an open hand of help,
A splendid presence flattering the poor roofs

Sanguine he was; a but less vivid hue
Than of that islet in the chestnut-bloom
Flamed in his cheek; and eager eyes, that still Took note of all things joyful, beam'd
Beneath a manelike mass of rolling gold,
Their best and brightest, when they dwelt on hers.

Aylmer's Field.

WOMEN.

Edith — whose pensive beauty, perfect else,
But subject to the season or the mood,
Shone like a mystic star between the less
And greater glory varying to and fro,
We knew not wherefore; bounteously made,
And yet so finely, that a troublous touch
Thinn'd, or would seem to thin her in a day,

A joyous to dilate, as toward the light.

Though seeming boastful.
Aylmer's Field.

WOMEN.

Low was her voice, but won mysterious way
Thro' the seal'd ear to which a louder one
Was all but silence — free of alms her hand—
How often placed upon the sick man's brow
Cool'd it, or laid his feverous pillow smooth!
For she walk'd
Wearing the light yoke of that Lord of love
Who still'd the rolling wave of Galilee!

Where is another sweet as my sweet,
Fine of the fine, and shy of the shy?
Fine little hands, fine little feet —
Dewy blue eye.

Shall I write to her? Shall I go?

Ask her to marry me by and by?
Somebody said that she'd say no!

Somebody knows that she'll say ay!

Ay or no, if ask'd to her face?

Ay or no, from shy of the shy?

Go, little letter, apace, apace.

Fly! Fly! to the light in the valley below,

Tell my wish to her dewy blue eye.

Somebody said that she'd say no;

Somebody knows that she'll say ay.

English Idyls and Other Poems.

WOMEN.

The woman half turn'd round from him she loved,
Left him one hand, and reaching thro' the night
Her other, found — for it was close beside —
And half-embraced the basket cradle-head
With one soft arm, which, like the pliant bough
That moving moves the nest and nestling, sway'd
The cradle, while she sang.

March II.

MEN.

Remember the man
Who never sold the truth to serve the hour,
Nor palter'd with Eternal God for power,
Who let the turbid streams of rumor flow
Thro' either babbling world of high and low,
Whose life was work, whose language rife,
With rugged maxims hewn from life,
Who never spoke against a foe.

Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington.

English Idyls and Other Poems.

WOMEN.

I remember a quarrel I had —
All for a slanderous story, that cost me
many a tear,
And the parson made it his text that week,
and he said likewise
That a lie which is half a truth, is ever the blackest of lies,
That a lie which is all a lie may be met and fought with outright
But a lie which is part a truth is a harder battle to fight.

You'll have no scandal while you dine,
But honest talk and wholesome wine.

We might discuss

Whether war's avenging rod
Shall lash all Europe into blood;
Till you should turn to dearer matters
Dear to the man that is dear to God.
How best to help the slender store,
How mend the dwellings of the poor;
How gain in life, as life advances,
Valor and charity more and more.

And let the fair white-wing'd peacemaker fly
To happy havens under the sky,
And mix the seasons and the golden hours;
Till each man find his own in all men's good,
And all men work in noble brotherhood,
Breaking their mailed fleets and armed towers
And ruling by obeying Nature's powers,
And gathering all the fruits of earth and crown'd with all her flowers.

Not once or twice in our fair-island story,
The path of duty was the way to glory.
He, that ever following her commands
On with toil of heart and knees and hands Thro' the long gorge to the far light has won
His path upward, and prevail'd,
Shall find the toppling crags of Duty scaled
Are close upon the shining table-lands
To which our God Himself is moon and sun.

He seems to me
Scarce other than my . . . ideal knight
Who revered his conscience as his king.
Whose glory was, redressing human wrong:
Who spake no slander, no, nor listen'd to it:
Who loved one only and who clave to her.

The Coming of Arthur — Dedication.

WOMEN.

Since he neither wore on helm or shield
The golden symbol of his kinglihood,
But rode a simple knight among his knights
And many of these in richer arms than he,
She saw him not, or mark'd not, if she saw,
One among many, tho' his face was bare.
But Arthur, looking downward as he past,
Felt the light of her eyes into his life

We have lost him; he is gone;
We know him now; all narrow jealousies
Are silent; and we see him as he moved,
How modest, kindly, all-accomplish'd, wise,
With what sublime repression of himself,
And in what limits, and how tenderly;
Not swaying to this faction or to that;
Not making his high place the lawless perch
Of wing'd ambitions, nor a vantage ground
For pleasure; but thro' all this tract of years
Wearing the white flower of a blameless

And then she sang,
' O morning star that smilest in the blue,
O star, my morning dream hath proven true,
Smile sweetly, thou! my love hath smiled on me.'

You said your say:
Mine answer was my deed. Good sooth! I hold
He scarce is knight, yea, but half man, nor meet
To fight for gentle damsel, he, who lets
His heart be stirred with any foolish heat
At any gentle damsel's waywardness.

April 14.

MEN.

The brave Geraint, a knight of Arthur's court
Had wedded Enid
And loved her as he loved the light of Heaven.

Thinking, that if ever yet was wife
True to her lord, mine shall be true to me.
He compassed her with sweet observances
And worship, never leaving her, and grew
Forgetful of his glory and his name,
Forgetful of his pryncedom and its cares.

Enid.

WOMEN.

This forgetfulness was hateful to her.
And day by day she thought to tell Geraint,
But could not out of bashful delicacy; and Low to her own heart piteously she said
" O noble heart and all-puissant arms

Idyls of the King.

Am I the cause, I the poor cause that men
Reproach you, saying all your force is gone?
I am the cause, because I dare not speak
And tell him what I think and what they say.
And yet I hate that he should linger here:
I cannot love my lord and not his name.

Enid.

April 15.

MEN.

He that watched her sadden, was the more
Suspicious, that her nature had a taint,
And then he thought, "In spite of all my care,

For all my pains, poor man, for all my pains,
She is not faithful to me, and I see her Weeping for some gay knight in Arthur's hall."

Then though he love and revered her too much

To dream she could be guilty of foul act, Right through his manful breast darted the pang

That makes a man, in the sweet face of her
Whom he loves most, lonely and miserable.

Enid.

Idyls of the King.

And she
Sweetly and statelily, and with all grace
Of womanhood — answered him.

April 16.

MEN.

The voice of Enid — rang
Clear through the open casement of the Hall,
Singing: and as the sweet voice of a bird
Heard by the lander in a lonely isle,
Moves him to think what kind of bird it is
That sings so delicately clear. . . .
So the sweet voice of Enid moved Geraint;
And made him like a man abroad at morn
When first the liquid note beloved of men

In April suddenly Breaks from a coppice gemmed with green and red,
And he suspends his converse with a friend,
Or it may be the labor of his hands
To think or say, "That is the nightingale;"
So fared it with Geraint, who thought and said,
"Here, by God's grace, is the one voice for me."

Enid.

Like a blossom vermeil-white,
That lightly breaks a faded flower-sheath,
Moved the fair Enid.

Turn, Fortune, turn thy wheel with smile or frown;
With that wild wheel we go not up or down;
Our hoard is little, but our hearts are great.
Smile and we smile, the lords of many lands,
Frown and we smile, the lords of our own hands;
For man is man and master of his fate.

Enid.

Seeing her so sweet and serviceable,
Geraint had longing in him evermore
To stoop and kiss the tender little thumb,
That crost the trencher as she laid it down.

O purblind race of miserable men,
How many among us at this very hour

Idyls of the King.

Do forge a life-long trouble for ourselves,
By taking true for false, or false for true;
Here, through the feeble twilight of this world

Groping, how many, until we pass and reach
That other, where we see as we are seen.

Enid.

WOMEN.

As the white and glittering star of morn
Parts from a bank of snow, and by and by Slips into golden cloud, the maiden rose,
And left her maiden couch, and robed herself,

Helped by her mother's careful hand and eye

Without a mirror, in the gorgeous gown;
Who, after, turned her daughter round, and
said,

She never yet had seen her half so fair;
And called her like that maiden in the tale, Whom Gwydion made by glamour out of flowers.

And answered with such craft as women use,
Guilty or guiltless, to stave off a chance
That breaks upon them perilously.

I know men; nor will you win him back,
For the man's love once gone never returns.

Enid.

WOMEN.

Enid heard the clashing of his fall,
Suddenly came, and at his side all pale Dismounting, loosed the fastenings of his arms,

Nor let her true hand falter, nor blue eye
Moisten, till she had lighted on his wound,
And tearing off her veil of faded silk
Had bared her forehead to the blistering sun,

And swathed the hurt that drained her dear lord's life.

Then after all was done that hand could do,
She rested, and all her desolation came Upon her, and she wept beside the way.

His quick, instinctive hand
Caught at the hilt, as to abolish him;
But he, from his exceeding manfulness
And pure nobility of temperament,

Idyls of the King.

Wroth to be wroth at such a worm,
refrained.

From ev'n a word.

Enid.

WOMEN.

Never man rejoiced
More than Geraint to greet her. . . .
And glancing all at once as keenly at her,
As careful robins eye the delver's toil,
Made her cheek burn and either eyelid fall,
But rested with her sweet face satisfied.

Enid.

April 28.

MEN.

I myself sometimes despise myself;
For I have let men be, and have their way;
And much too gentle, have not used my power.

Nor know I whether I be very base
Or very manful, whether very wise
Or very foolish; only this I know
That whatsoever evil happen to me,
I seem to suffer nothing heart or limb,
But can endure it all most patiently.

Never yet, since high in Paradise
O'er the four rivers the first roses blew,
Came purer pleasure unto mortal kind
Than lived through her, who in that perilous hour
Put hand to hand beneath her husband's

And felt him hers again; she did not weep,
But o'er her meek eyes came a happy mist

Idyls of the King.

Like that which kept the heart of Eden green

His very face with change of heart is changed.

The world will not believe a man repents:
And this wise world of ours is mainly right.
For seldom does a men repent, or use
Both grace and will to pick the vicious quitch
Of blood and custom wholly out of him,
And make all clean, and plant himself afresh —

He has done it, weeding all his heart.

Vivien.

WOMEN.

In Love, if Love be Love, if Love be ours,
Faith and unfaith can ne'er be equal powers;
Unfaith in aught is want of faith in all.

It is the little rift within the lute,
That by and by will make the music mute,
And ever widening slowly silence all.

Advs of the King.

The little rift within the lover's lute,
Or little pitted speck in garnered fruit,
That rotting inward slowly moulders all.

It is not worth the keeping; let it go;
But shall it? answer, darling, answer, no,
And trust me not at all or all in all.

Vivien.

May 3.

Lo now, what hearts have men! they never mount
As high as woman in her selfless mood.

Vivien.

WOMEN.

She mused a little
. . . . And said
"Stabbed through the heart's affections to the heart!
Seethed like the kid in its own mother's milk!
Killed with a word worse than a life of blows!
I thought that he was gentle, being great;

Advls of the King.

O God, that I had loved a smaller man!
I should have found in him a greater heart."

Vivien.

May 4.

MEN.

O true and tender! . . .
O selfless man and stainless gentleman,
Who would against thine own eye-witness fain
Have all men true and leal, all women pure;
How in the mouth of base interpreters,
From over-fineness not intelligible
To things in every sense as false and foul
As the poached filth that floods the middle street,
Is thy white blamelessness accounted blame!

To leave an equal baseness.

Idyls of the King.

If they find
Some stain or blemish in a name of note,
Not grieving that their greatest are so small,
Inflate themselves with some insane delight,
And judge all Nature from her feet of clay,

For when the blood ran lustier in him again,
Full often the sweet image of one face,
Making a treacherous quiet in his heart,
Dispersed his resolution like a cloud.

He looked, and more amazed
Than if seven men had set upon him, saw
The maiden standing in the dewy light.
He had not dreamed she was so beautiful.
Then came on him a sort of sacred fear,

Idyls of the King.

For silent, though he greeted her, she stood,
Rapt on his face as if it were a God's.

Elaine.

WOMEN.

All night long his face before her lived,
As when a painter, poring on a face
Divinely through all hindrance finds the man
Behind it, and so paints him that his face,
The shape and color of a mind and life,
Lives for his children, ever at its best
And fullest; so the face before her lived,
Dark-splendid, speaking in the silence, full
Of noble things, and held her from her sleep.

I thank the saints, I am not great,
For if there ever come a grief to me,
I cry my cry in silence, and have done;
None knows it, and my tears have brought me good:

But even were the griefs of little ones
As great as those of great ones, yet this grief
Is added to the griefs the great must bear,
That howsoever much they may desire
Silence, they cannot weep behind a cloud.

I hold that man, the worst of public foes,
Who either for his own or children's sake,
To save his blood from scandal, lets the wife

Whom he knows false abide and rule the house.

For being through his cowardice allowed
Her station, taken everywhere for pure,
She like a new disease, unknown to men,
Creeps, no precaution used, among the crowd,

Makes wicked lightnings of her eyes, and saps

Had I but loved the highest creature here?
It was my duty to have loved the highest:
It surely was my profit had I known:
It would have been my pleasure had I seen.

Guinevere.

May 30.

MEN.

I made them lay their hands in mine and swear

To reverence the King, as if he were Their conscience, and their conscience as their King,

To break the heathen and uphold the Christ;

To ride abroad redressing human wrongs;

To speak no slander; no, nor listen to it;

To lead sweet lives in purest chastity;

To love one maiden only, cleave to her,

And worship her by years of noble deeds,

Until they won her; for indeed I knew

Of no more subtle master under heaven

Than is the maiden passion for a maid

Not only to keep down the base in man,

But teach high thought, and amiable words

And courtliness, and the desire of fame,

And love of truth, and all that makes a man.

Guinevere.

WOMEN.

You say, but with no touch of scorn,
Sweet-hearted, you, whose bright-blue
eyes
Are tender over drowning flies,
You tell me, doubt is Devil-born.

In Memoriam, XCIV.

In Memoriam.

June 10.

MEN.

Perplexed in faith, but pure in deeds
At last he beat his music out.
There lives more faith in honest doubt,
Believe me, than in half the creeds.
He fought his doubts and gathered strength,
He would not make his judgment blind,
He faced the spectres of the mind
And laid them; thus he came at length
To find a stronger faith his own:
And Power was with him in the night,
Which makes the darkness and the light,
And dwells not in the light alone.

In Memoriam, XCIV.

WOMEN.

No lapse of moons can canker Love
Whatever fickle tongues may say.
In Memoriam, XXVI.

June 11.

MEN.

Can calm despair and wild unrest
Be tenants of a single breast?

In Memoriam.

And made me that delirious man
Whose fancy fuses old and new,
And flashes into false and true,
And mingles all without a plan?

In Memoriam, XVI.

WOMEN.

Her eyes are homes of silent prayer.

In Memoriam, XXXII.

June 12.

MEN.

We pass; the path that each man trod
Is dim, or will be dim, with weeds:
What fame is left for human deeds
In endless age? It rests with God.

In Memoriam, LXXI.

WOMEN.

I hold it true, whate'er befall:
I feel it, when I sorrow most!
'Tis better to have loved and lost
Than never to have loved at all.

In Memoriam, XXVII.

In Memoriam.

June 13.

MEN.

The lesser griefs, that may be said,
That breathe a thousand tender vows,
Are but as servants in a house
Where lies the master newly dead.

My lighter moods are like to these,
That out of words a comfort win;
But there are other griefs within,
And tears that at their fountain freeze

In Memoriam, XX.

WOMEN.

Thrice blest whose lives are faithful prayers,
Whose loves in higher love endure
What souls possess themselves so pure,
Or is their blessedness like theirs?

In Memoriam, XXXII.

June 14.

MEN.

One writes that, "Other friends remain,"
That "Loss is common to the race," —
And common is the commonplace,
And vacant chaff well meant for grain.

In Memoriam.

That loss is common would not make
My own less bitter, rather more:
Too common! Never morning wore
To evening, but some heart did break.

In Memoriam, VI.

WOMEN.

This it was that made me move
As light as carrier-birds in air;
I loved the weight I had to bear,
Because it needed help of Love.

In Memoriam, XXV.

MEN.

He

Not being less but more than all
The gentleness he seemed to be.
So wore his outward best, and joined
Each office of the social hour
To noble manners, as the flower
And native growth of noble mind.
And thus he bore without abuse
The grand old name of gentleman

In Memoriam.

Defamed by every charlatan,
And soiled with all ignoble use.

To utter love more sweet than praise.

The shade by which my life was crossed,
Which makes a desert in the mind,

In Memoriam, LXIV.

June 18.

MEN.

Do we indeed desire the dead
Should still be near us at our side?
Is there no baseness we would hide?
No inner vileness that we dread?

Shall he for whose applause I strove,
I had such reverence for his blame,
See with clear eye some hidden shame
And I be lessened in his love?

I wrong the grave with fears untrue:

* * * * *

There must be wisdom with great Death:
The dead shall look me through and through.

In Memoriam.

With larger, other eyes than ours,
To make allowance for us all.

In Memoriam, L.

My own dim life should teach me this,
That life shall live forevermore,
Else earth is darkness at the core
And dust and ashes all that is.

In Memoriam, XXXIV.

MEN.

We have but faith; we cannot know;
For knowledge is of things we see;
And yet we trust it comes from Thee,
A beam in darkness, let it grow.

Let knowledge grow from more to more,
But more of reverence in us dwell,
That mind and soul, according well,
May make one music.

O heart, how fares it with thee now,
That thou shouldst fail from thy desire,
Who scarcely darest to inquire
What is it makes me beat so low?

Something it is which thou hast lost,
Some pleasure from thine early years.
Break, thou deep vase of chilling tears
That grief hath shaken into frost!

Such clouds of nameless trouble cross
All night below the darkened eyes,
With morning wakes the will, and cries,
"Thou shalt not be the fool of loss!"

A happy lover who has come
To look on her that loves him well,
Who lights, and rings the gateway bell,
And learns her gone, and far from home.

He saddens, all the magic light
Dies off at once from bower and hall,
And all the place is dark, and all
The chambers emptied of delight.

In Memoriam, VIII.

WOMEN.

Leave thou thy sister, when she prays
Her early Heaven, her happy views;
Nor thou with shadowed hint confuse
A life that leads melodious days.

Her faith through form is pure as thine,
Her hands are quicker unto good,
O sacred be the flesh and blood
To which she links a truth divine.

Dost thou look back on what hath been,
As some divinely gifted man,
Whose life in low estate began,
And on a simple village green.

Who breaks his birth's invidious bar,
And grasps the skirts of happy chance,
And breasts the blows of circumstance,
And grapples with his evil star.

Could we forget

* * * * *

A maiden in the day

When first she wears her orange-flower!

When crowned with blessings she doth rise

To take the latest leave of home,

And hopes and light regrets that come

Make April of her tender eyes:

And doubtful joys the father move,

And tears are on the mother's face,

As parting, with a long embrace

She enters other realms of love;

Her office there to rear, to teach,

Becoming, as is meet and fit,

A link among the days, to knit

The generations each with each.

Fret not, like an idle girl,

That life is dashed with flecks of sin,

Abide: thy wealth is gathered in,

In Memoriam.

June 28.

MEN.

How pure at heart and sound in head;
With what divine affection; bold
Should be the man whose thoughts would hold
An hour's communion with the dead.

In vain shalt thou, or any call
The spirits from their golden day,
Except, like them, thou too canst say
My spirit is at peace with all.

In Memoriam, XCII.

WOMAN.

Some poor girl whose heart is set
On one whose rank exceeds her own
* * * * *

Half jealous of she knows not what
* * * * *

She sighs amid her narrow days
Moving about the household ways
In that dark home where she was born.

The foolish neighbors come and go,
And tease her till the day draws by:

In Memoriam.

At night she weeps: How vain am I
How should he love a thing so low?

In Memoriam, LVIII.

MAN.

Thy converse drew us with delight
The men of rathe and riper years;
The feeble soul a haunt of fears
Forgot his weakness in thy sight.

On thee the loyal-hearted hung.

The proud were half disarmed of pride,

* * * * *

The stern were mild when thou went by,
The flippant put himself to school
And heard thee, and the brazen fool
Was softened, and he knew not why.

In Memoriam, CVIII.

WOMAN.

She keeps the gift of years before,
A withered violet is her bliss:
She knows not what his greatness is,
For that, for all, she loves him more.

For him she plays, to him she sings
Of early faith and plighted vows;

In Memoriam.

She knows but matters of the house,
And he, he knows a thousand things.

Her faith is fixed and cannot move,
She darkly feels him great and wise,
She dwells on him with faithful eyes.

“I cannot understand; I love.”

In Memoriam, XCV.

June 30.

MAN.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind,
For those that here we see no more;
Ring out the feud of rich and poor,
Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring in the valiant man and free
The larger heart, the kindlier hand,
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be.

In Memoriam, CIV.

WOMAN.

These two — they dwelt with eye on eye,
Their hearts of old have beat in tune,
Their meetings made December June,
Their every parting was to die.

In Memoriam, XCV.

July.

The Princess.

Everywhere

Two heads in council, two beside the hearth,
Two in the tangled business of the world;
Two in the liberal offices of life,
Two plummetts dropt for one to sound the abyss
Of science, and the secrets of the mind.

II.

The Princess.

July 1.

MEN.

From earlier than I know,
I loved the woman; he, that doth not, lives
A drowning life, besotted in sweet self,
Or pines in sad experience worse than death.
Yet was there one thro' whom I loved her,
one
Not learned, save in gracious household ways,
Not perfect, nay, but full of tender wants
No Angel, but a dearer being, all dipt
In Angel instincts, breathing Paradise,
Interpreter between the gods and men,
Who looked all native to her place, and yet
On tiptoe seem'd to touch upon a sphere
Too gross to tread, and all male minds perforce
Sway'd to her from their orbits as they moved
And girdled her with music. Happy he
With such a mother! faith in womankind
Beats with his blood, and trust in all things high

The Princess.

Comes easy to him, and tho' he trip and fall
He shall not blind his soul with clay.

VII.

WOMAN.

Woman is not undevelop't man,
But diverse; could we make her as the man,
Sweet Love were slain; his dearest bond is this,
Not like to like, but like in difference.

VII.

July 2.

MEN.

In the long years, liker must they grow,
The man be more of woman, she of man;
He gain in sweetness and in moral height
Nor lose the wrestling thews that throw the world.

VII.

WOMAN.

She mental breath, nor fail in childward
care
Nor lose the childlike in the larger mind.
Till at the last she set herself to man
Like perfect music unto noble words,
And so the twain, upon the skirts of Time,

The Princess.

Sit side by side, full summ'd, in all their powers.

Dispensing harvest, sowing the To-be,
Self-reverent each and reverencing each,
Distinct in individualities.

But like each other ev'n as those who love.

VII.

July 3.

MAN.

The woman's cause is man's, they rise or sink

Together, dwarf'd or godlike bond or free.

VII.

WOMAN.

She that out of Lethe scales with man
The shining steps of Nature, shares with man

His nights, his days, moves with him to one goal,

Stays all the fair young planets in her hands —

If she be small, slight-natured, miserable,
How shall men grow?

VII.

The Princess.

July 4.

MEN.

Either sex alone
Is half itself, and in true marriage lies
Nor equal nor unequal; each fulfils Defect in each, and always thought in thought,
Purpose in purpose, will in will, they grow
The single pure and perfect animal,
The two-cell'd heart beating, with one full stroke.

VII.

WOMEN.

Let her — live and learn and be
All that not harms distinctive womanhood.

VII.

July 5.

MEN.

It becomes no man to nurse despair,
But in the teeth of clinch'd antagonisms
To follow up the worthiest till he dies.

IV.

WOMEN.

Women — that have as many differences as we,

The Princess.

The violet varies from the lily as far
As oak from elm; one loves the soldier, one
The silken priest of peace, one this, one that,
And some unworthily.

V.

July 6.

MEN.

We fell out, my wife and I;
We fell out, I know not why,
And kissed again with tears,
And blessings on the falling out
That all the more endears,
When we fall out with those we love,
And kiss again with tears!

II.

WOMEN.

O lift your natures up,
. . . girls,
Knowledge is now no more a fountain sealed,
Drink deep, until the habits of the slave
The sins of emptiness, gossip, and spite
And slander die. Better not be at all
Than not be noble.

II.

The Princess.

July 7.

MEN.

Crack'd and small his voice,
But bland the smile that like a wrinkling wind
On glassy water drove his cheek in lines;
A little, dry old man.

I.

WOMEN.

My mother was as mild as any saint,
Half-canonized by all that look'd on her,
So gracious was her tact and tenderness.

I.

July 8.

MEN.

This barren verbiage, current among men
Light coin, the tinsel clink of complement.

II.

WOMEN.

All beauty compass'd in a female form,
The Princess; liker to the inhabitant
Of some clear planet close upon the Sun,
Than our men's earth; such eyes were in her head,

The Princess.

And so much grace and power, breathing
down
From over her arch'd brows, with every turn
Lived thro' her to the tips of her long hand
And to her feet,

II.

July 9.

MEN.

A rogue, in grain
Veneer'd with sanctimonious theory.

Prologue.

WOMEN.

Petulant she spoke, and at herself she laugh'd;
A rosebud set with little, wilful thorns,
And sweet as English air could make her.

Prologue.

July 10.

MEN.

I was courteous, every phrase well-oil'd,
As man's could be.

III.

The Princess.

WOMEN.

There is nothing upon earth
More miserable than she that has a son
And sees him err.

III.

July II.

MEN.

Heads — Some men's were small; not they
the least of men;
For often fineness compensated size;
Beside the brain was like the hand, and grew
With using; thence the man's, if more was
more;
He took advantage of his strength to be
First in the field.

II.

WOMEN.

A rosy blond, and in a college gown,
That clad her like an April daffodilly
With her lips apart,
And all her thoughts as fair within her eyes
As bottom agates seen to wave and float
In crystal currents of clear, morning seas.

II.

The Princess.

July 12.

MEN.

A gentleman of broken means
Given to starts and bursts.

I.

WOMEN.

O miracle of women —
O noble heart —
O miracle of noble womanhood.

Prologue.

July 13.

MEN.

What kind of tales did men tell men,
She wonder'd by themselves.

Prologue.

WOMEN.

The maiden Aunt
Took this fair day for text, and from it preach'd
On universal culture for the crowd,
And all things great.

Prologue.

The Princess.

July 14.

MEN.

Quoit, tennis, ball, games —
Which men delight in, martial exercise.

III.

WOMEN.

Pretty were the sight
If our old halls could change their sex, and flaunt
With prudes for proctors, dowagers for deans,
And sweet girl-graduates in their golden hair.

Prologue.

July 15.

MEN.

Howe'er
He deal in frolic
These flashes on the surface are not he.
He has a solid base of temperament;
But as the water-lily starts and slides
Upon the level in little puffs of wind,
Tho' anchor'd to the bottom, such is he.

IV.

The Princess.

WOMEN.

Why lingereth she to clothe her heart with love,
Delaying as the tender ash delays
To clothe herself, when all the woods are green?

IV.

July 16.

MEN.

Knaves are men,
That lute and flute fantastic tenderness
And dress the victim to the offering up.

IV.

WOMEN.

I thought her half-right talking of her wrongs;
I say she flies too high, 's death! What of that?
I take her for the flower of womankind,
And so I often told her, right or wrong,
And she can be sweet to those she loves,
And right or wrong —
I stand upon her side.

V.

The Princess.

July 17.

MEN.

War-music — the blind wildbeast of force,
Whose home is in the sinews of a man.

V.

WOMEN.

My mother, looks as whole as some serene
Creation minted in the golden moods
Of sovereign artists; not a thought, a touch,
But pure as lines of green that streak the white

Of the first snowdrop's inner leaves.

V.

July 18.

MEN.

When the man wants weight, the woman takes it up,
And topples down the scale; but this is fixt
As are the roots of earth and base of all;
Man for the field, and woman for the hearth:
Man for the sword and for the needle she;
Man with the head and woman with the heart;

Man to command and woman to obey.

All else confusion.

V.

The Princess.

WOMEN.

The bearing and training of a child
Is woman's wisdom.

V.

July 19.

MEN.

That large moulded man,
Tough, strong, supple, sinew-corded, apt at arms.

V.

WOMEN.

Down thro' her limbs a drooping languor wept.
Her head a little bent; and on her mouth
A doubtful smile dwelt like a clouded moon
In a still water.

VI.

July 20.

MEN.

Have patience — ourselves are full
Of social wrong; and maybe wildest dreams
Are but the needful prelude of the truth.
This fine old world of ours is but a child

The Princess.

Yet in the go-cart. Patience! Give it time
To learn its limbs; there is a Hand that guides.

VII.

WOMEN.

Pale was the perfect face:
The bosom with long sighs labor'd; and mEEK
Seemed the full lips, and mild the luminous
eyes,
And the voice trembled and the hand.

She said

Brokenly, that she knew it, she had fail'd
In sweet humility; had fail'd in all.

VII.

July 21.

MEN.

No little lily-handed Baronet he,
A great broad-shoulder'd, genial English-
man.
A Lord of fat prize-oxen and of sheep,
A raiser of huge melons and of pine,
A patron of some thirty charities,
A phamphlateer on guano and on grain,
A quarter-sessions chairman, abler none;

The Princess.

Fair-hair'd and redder than a windy morn;
Now shaking hands with him, now him, of those
That stood the nearest — now address'd to speech —
Who spoke few words and pithy, such as closed
Welcome, farewell, welcome for the year to follow.

Conclusion.

WOMEN.

Descend and proffer
The tender ministries
Of female hands and hospitality.

VI.

July 22.

MEN.

Look you, Sir!
Man is the hunter; woman is his game.

V.

WOMEN.

Everywhere
Low voices with the ministering hand
Hung round the sick; the maidens came, they talk'd,

The Princess.

They sang, they read; till she not fair began
To gather light, and she that was, became
Her former beauty treble, and to and fro
With books, with flowers, with Angel offices,
Like creatures native unto gracious acts
And in their own clear element they moved.

VII.

July 23.

MEN.

Boy, there's no rose that's half so dear to
women

As he that does the thing they dare not do,
Breathing and sounding beauteous battle, comes

With the air of the trumpet round him, and leaps in

Among the women, snares them by the score,

Flatter'd and fluster'd, wins, tho' dashed with death

He reddens what he kisses, thus I won

Your mother, a good mother, a good wife,
Worth winning.

V.

The Princess.

WOMEN.

Every woman counts her due
Love, children, happiness.

III.

July 24.

MEN.

You hold the woman is the better man,
A rampant heresy, such as if it spread
Would make all women kick against their Lords
Thro' all the world.

IV.

WOMEN.

The woman is so hard
Upon the woman.

VI.

July 25.

MEN.

These men came to woo.
Verily, I think, to win.

VI.

WOMEN.

Come down, O maid, from yonder mountain height.
What pleasure lives in height.

The Princess.

In height and cold, the splendor of the hills?
But cease to move so near the Heavens and cease

To glide a sunbeam by the blasted Pine,
To sit a star upon the sparkling spire;
And come, for Love is of the valley; come thou down
And find him.

VII.

July 26.

MEN.

They praised him —
Call'd him worthy to be loved,
Truest friend and noblest foe.

VI.

WOMEN.

An open-hearted maiden, true and pure.
How pretty
Her blushing was.

III.

July 27.

MEN.

Every captain waits hungry for honor.

V.

The Princess.

WOMEN.

Thy voice is heard thro' rolling drums,
That beat to battle where he stands;
Thy face across his fancy comes
And gives the battle to his hands:
A moment, while the trumpets blow
He sees his brood about thy knee;
The next, like fire he meets the foe,
And strikes him dead for thee and thine.

IV.

July 28.

MEN.

And one
Discussed his tutor, rough to common men,
But honeying at the whisper of a Lord.

Prologue.

WOMEN.

When did women ever yet invent?

III.

July 29.

MEN.

Many a famous man, woman, town
And landskip have I heard of, after seen
The dwarfs of presage; tho' when known there grew

The Princess.

Another kind of beauty in detail
Made them worth knowing.

IV.

WOMEN.

Many a little hand
Glanced like a touch of sunshine on the rocks,
Many a light foot shone like a jewel set
In the dark crag.

III.

July 30.

MEN.

My wife, my life. O we will walk this world,
Yoked in all exercise of noble end,
And so thro' those dark gates across the wild
That no man knows. Indeed I love thee, come
Yield thyself up; my hopes and thine are
one,
Accomplish thou my manhood and thyself;
Lay thy sweet hands in mine and trust in me.

VII.

The Princess.

WOMEN.

Love —

Held carnival at will, and flying struck
With showers of random sweet on maid and man.

VII.

July 31.

MEN.

God bless

Some sense of duty, something of a faith,
Some reverence for the laws ourselves have made,
Some patient force to change them when we will,
Some civic manhood firm against the crowd.

Conclusion.

WOMEN.

The woman sang

Between the rough voices of the men
Like linnets in the pauses of the wind.

Prologue.

August.

Maud.

Harold.

These are the days of advance, the works of the men of mind.

Maud — Part I.

Maud.

August 1.

MEN.

Not to desire or admire, if a man could learn it, were more Than to walk all day like the sultan of old in a garden of spice.

Maud — Part I.

WOMEN.

She has neither savor nor salt,
But a cold and clear-cut face —
Perfectly beautiful; let it be granted her;
Where is the fault?
Faultily, faultless, icily regular, splendidly null,
Dead perfection no more; nothing more, if it had not been
For a chance of travel, a paleness, an hour's defect of the rose,
Or an underlip, you may call it a little too ripe, too full,
Or the least little delicate aquiline curve in a sensitive nose.

Part I.

Maud.

August 2.

MEN.

Be mine a philosopher's life in the quiet woodland ways,
Where if I cannot be gay let a passionless
peace be my lot,
Far-off from the clamor of liars belied in the hubbub of lies;
From the long-neck'd geese of the world that are ever hissing dispraise
Because their natures are little, and, whether he heed it or not,
Where each man walks with his head in a cloud of poisonous flies.

Part I.

WOMEN.

Cold and clear-cut face — cruelly meek —
Pale with the golden beam of an eyelash dead on the cheek,
Passionless, pale, cold face, star-sweet in a gloom profound;
Womanlike, taking revenge too deep for a transient wrong
Done but in thought to your beauty.

Part I.

Maud.

August 3.

MEN.

We are puppets, Man in his pride, and Beauty fair in her flower;
Do we move ourselves, or are we moved by an unseen hand at a game
That pushes us off from the board, and others ever succeed?
And yet, we cannot be kind to each other here for an hour;
We whisper, and hint, and chuckle, and grin at a brother's shame;
However we brave it out, we men are a little breed.

Part I.

WOMEN.

The fire of a foolish pride flash'd over her beautiful face.
O child, you wrong your beauty, believe it,
in being so proud.

Part I.

Maud.

August 4.

MEN.

Myself from myself I guard,
For often a man's own angry pride
Is cap and bells for a fool.

Part I.

WOMEN.

What if with her sunny hair,
And smile as sunny as cold,
She meant to weave me a snare
Of some coquettish deceit,
Cleopatra-like as of old
To entangle me when we met,
To have her lion roll in a silken net
And fawn at a victor's feet.

Part I.

August 5.

MEN.

Men — in battle array
Ready in heart and ready in hand,
March with banner and bugle and fife
To the death for their native land.

Part I.

Maud.

WOMEN.

Perhaps the smile and tender tone
Came out of her pityng womanhood.

Part I.

August 6.

MEN.

Down with ambition, avarice, pride,
Jealousy, down! Cut off from the mind
The bitter springs of anger and fear;
Down too, down at your own fireside
With the evil tongue and the evil ear,
For each is at war with mankind.

Part I.

WOMEN.

A voice by the cedar tree
Singing alone in the morning of life,
In the happy morning of life and May,
Maud with her exquisite face
And wild voice pealing up to the sunny sky,
And feet like sunny gems on an English
green,
Maud in the light of her youth and grace.

• • • • •
Silence, beautiful voice!

Maud.

Your sweetness hardly leaves me a choice
But to run to the meadow and fall before
Her feet in the meadow grass, and adore
Not her, who is neither courtly nor kind,
Not her, not her, but a voice.

Part I.

August 7.

MEN.

Ah God, for a man with heart, head, hand,
Like some of the simple great ones gone
For ever, and ever by,
One still strong man in a blatant land,
Whatever they call him, what care I,
Aristocrat, democrat, autocrat — one
Who can rule and dare not lie.

Part I.

WOMEN.

I kiss'd her slender hand,
She took the kiss sedately;
Maud is not seventeen
But she is tall and stately.

O Maud were sure of Heaven
If lowliness could save her.
I know the way she went

Maud.

Home with her maiden posy,
For her feet have touched the meadows
And left the daisies rosy.

Part I.

August s.

MEN.

His face

Has a broad-blown comeliness, red and white,
And six feet two, as I think, he stands;
But his essences turn'd the live air sick,
And barbarous opulence jewel-thick
Sunn'd itself on his breast and his hands.

Part I.

WOMEN.

O beautiful creature, what am I
That I dare to look her way;
And dream of her beauty
From the delicate Arab arch of her feet
To the grace that, bright and light as the crest
Of a peacock, sits on her shining head,
And she knows it not: O, if she knew it,
To know her beauty might half undo it.

Part I.

Maud.

August 9.

MEN.

Live a life of truest breath,
And teach true life to fight with mortal wrongs.

Part I.

WOMEN.

There is none like her, none,
Her whose gentle will has changed my fate
And made my life a perfumed altar-flame.

Part I.

August 10.

MEN.

It is better to fight for the good than to rail at the ill.

Part III.

WOMEN.

She is singing in the meadow
My bird with the shining head,
My own dove with the tender eye.

Part II.

August 11.

MEN.

Strange, that the mind, when fraught
With a passion so intense

Maud.

One would think that it well
Might drown all life in the eye —
That it should, by being so over-wrought,
Suddenly strike on a sharper sense
For a shell, or a flower, little things
Which else would have been passed by.

Part II.

WOMEN.

The meadows your walks have left so sweet
That whenever a March-wind sighs
He sets the jewel-print of your feet
In violets blue as your eyes.

Part I.

August 12.

MEN.

Rich in the grace all women desire,
Strong in the power that all men adore.

Part I.

WOMEN.

Queen rose o. the rosebud garden of girls
Come hither, the dances are done,
In gloss of satin and glimmer of pearls,
Queen lily and rose in one,

Maud.

Shine out, little head, sunning over with curls

To the flowers, and be their sun.

Part I.

August 13.

MEN.

I never whisper'd a private affair
Within the hearing of cat or mouse,
No, not to myself in the closet alone,
But I heard it shouted at once from the top of the house;

Everything came to be known.

Part II.

WOMEN.

She came to the village church,
And sat by a pillar alone;
And once, but once, she lifted her eyes,
And suddenly, sweetly, strangely blush'd.

Part I.

August 14.

MEN.

The drift of the Maker is dark, an Isis hid
by a veil,

I have not made the world, and He that made it will guide.

Part I.

Maud.

WOMEN.

If Maud were all she seem'd
And her smiles were all that I dream'd
Then the world were not so bitter
But a smile could make it sweet.

Part I.

August 15.

MEN.

Scorn'd, to be scorn'd by one that I scorn,
Is that a matter to make me fret?
That a calamity hard to be borne?

Part I.

WOMEN.

Go not, happy day,
From the shining fields,
Go not, happy day,
Till the maiden yields.
Rosy is the West,
Rosy is the South,
Roses are her cheeks,
And a rose her mouth.
When the happy Yes
Falters from her lips,
Pass and blush the news
Over glowing ships,

Maud.

Over blowing seas,
Over seas at rest,
Pass the happy news,
Blush it thro' the West.

Part I.

August 16.

MEN.

He was humming an air,
Stopt, and then with a riding whip
Leisurely tapping a glossy boot,
And curving a contumelious lip,
Gorgonyed me from head to foot
With a stony British stare.

Part I.

WOMEN.

There is none like her, none.
Nor will be when our summers have deceased.

Part I.

August 17.

MEN.

If I be dear to some one else,
Then I should be to myself more dear.
Shall I not take care of all that I think
If I be dear to some one else?

Part I.

Harold.

WOMAN.

I know her but in two
Nor can pronounce upon it
If one should ask me whether
The habit, hat and feather,
Or the frock and gypsy bonnet
Be the neater and completer;
For nothing can be sweeter
Then maiden Maud in either.

Part 1.

August 18.

MEN.

In our windy world
What's up is faith, what's down is heresy.

Harold, Act I, Sc. I.

WOMAN.

A life of prayer and fasting well may see Deeper into the mysteries of heaven.

Act I, Sc. I.

August 19.

MEN.

He fain had,
A conscience for his own soul —
A twilight conscience lighted thro' a chink.

Act III, Sc. I.

Harold.

WOMEN.

Women cling to the conquer'd, if they love,
the more.

Act IV, Sc. II.

August 20.

MEN.

Words are the man.

Not ev'n for thy sake, brother, would I lie.

Act II, Sc. II.

WOMEN.

A wife,

What matter who, so she be serviceable

In all obedience.

Act III, Sc. I.

August 21.

MEN.

Be men less delicate than the Devil himself?
I thought that naked truth would shame the Devil.

Act III, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

God help me! I know nothing — can but pray,

Pray, pray, pray — no help but prayer.

Harold.

A breath that fleets beyond this iron world,
And touches Him that made it.

Act III, Sc. II.

August 22.

MEN.

He is broad and honest,
Breathing an easy gladness.

Act I, Sc. II.

WOMEN.

She hath won upon our people thro' her beauty,
And pleasantness.

Act IV, Sc. I.

August 23.

MEN.

Make not thou
The nothing something. Wisdom when in power
And wisest, should not frown as Power, but smile
As kindness, watching all, till the true must,
Shall make her strike as Power.

Act I, Sc. I.

Harold.

WOMEN.

Love is come with a song and a smile,
Welcome Love with a smile and a song:
Love can stay but a little while.
Why cannot he stay? They call him away:
Ye do him wrong, ye do him wrong,
Love will stay for a whole life long.

Act I, Sc. I.

August 24.

MEN.

I love the man but not his phantasies.

Act I, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

Evil for good, it seems
Is oft as childless of the good as evil
For evil.

Act V, Sc. I.

August 25.

MEN.

Put thou thyself and mother-wit together
Be not a fool!

Act II, Sc. I.

Harold.

WOMEN.

Full hope have I that love will answer love.

Act IV, Sc. I.

August 26,

MEN.

Might, right? ay good, so all things make for good —

But he and he, if soul be soul, are where Each stands full face with all he did below.

Act I, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

Her morning wanted sunlight, she so praised
The convent and lone life — within the pale —

Beyond the passion.

Act I, Sc. I.

August 27.

MEN.

Come, come,
Join hands, let brethren dwell in unity;
Let kith and kin stand close as our shield-wall.

Who breaks us then?

Act I, Sc. I.

Harold.

WOMEN.

Pour not water
In the full vessel running out at top
To swamp the house.

Act I, Sc. I.

August 28.

MEN.

There lodged a gleaming grimness in his eyes,
Gave his shorn smile the lie.

Act II, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

I am no woman to put faith in dreams.

Act IV, Sc. I.

August 29.

MEN.

Obey him, speak him fair,
For he is only debonair to those That follow where he leads, but stark as death
To those that cross him.

Act II, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

The more the love, the mightier the prayer.

Act III, Sc. I.

Harold.

August 30.

MEN.

The quietest man in the world —
Ay, ay, and wise in peace and great in war.
Act I, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

“ It is the flash that murders, the poor thunder
Never harm'd head.”
“ But thunder may bring down
That which the flash hath stricken.”
Act I, Sc. II.

August 31.

MEN.

He hath as much of cat as tiger in him,
He loves the hand and not the man.
Act I, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

My wingless nightingale
Thou art my music!
Act I, Sc. I.

September.

Queen Mary.

The parting of a husband and a wife
Is like the cleaving of a heart.

Act III, Sc. VI.

Queen Mary.

September 1.

MEN.

You cannot learn a man's nature from his natural foe.

Act I, Sc. V.

WOMEN.

O Madam,
You fly your thoughts like kites?

Act I, Sc. V.

September 2.

MEN.

There's no glory
Like his who saves his country.

Act II, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

Seventeen — and knew eight languages — in music
Peerless — her needle perfect, and her learning
Beyond the churchmen; yet so meek, so modest,
So wife-like humble.

Act III, Sc. I.

Queen Mary.

September 3.

MEN.

Most honest, brave, and skillful, and his wealth

A fountain of perennial alms — his fault
So thoroughly to believe in his own self.
Yet thoroughly to believe in one's own self,
So one's own self be thorough, were to do great things.

Act II, Sc. II.

WOMEN.

A smile abroad is oft a scowl at home.

Act III, Sc. I.

September 4.

MEN.

In statesmanship
To strike too soon is oft to miss the blow.

Act III, Sc. VI.

WOMEN.

You know what Virgil sings,
Woman is various and most mutable.

Act III, Sc. VI.

Queen Mary.

September 5.

MEN.

To do him any wrong was to beget
A kindness from him, for his heart was rich,
Of such fine mould, that if you sow'd therein
The seed of Hate, it blossom'd Charity.

Act IV, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

That sweet worn smile
Among thy patient wrinkles.

Act V, Sc. V.

September 6.

MEN.

The world is like a drunken man,
Who cannot move straight to his end, but reels
Now to the right, then as far to the left, Push'd by the crowd beside — and underfoot
An earthquake.

Act IV, Sc. III.

WOMEN.

Give to the poor
Ye give to God. He is with us in the poor.

Act IV, Sc. III.

Queen Mary.

September 7.

MEN.

Many so dote upon this bubble world,
Whose colors in a moment break and fly,
They care for nothing else. What saith St.
John:

“Love of this world is hatred against God.”
Act IV, Sc. III.

WOMEN.

By God's light, a noble creature.

Act I, Sc. I.

September 8.

MEN.

I pray you all to love together
Like brethren; yet what hatred Christian
men
Bear to each other, seeming not as brethren,
But mortal foes! But do you good to all
As much as in you lieth. Hurt no man
more
Than you would harm your loving natural brother
Of the same roof, same breast. If any do,

Queen Mary.

Albeit he think himself at home with God,
Of this be sure, he is whole worlds away.

Act IV, Sc. III.

WOMEN.

Flower, she!

Half faded! but you — are fresh and sweet
As the first flower no bee has ever tried.

Act I, Sc. IV.

September 9.

MEN.

Every man at time of death
Would fain set forth some saying that may live

After his death and better humankind,
For death gives life's last word a power to
live,

And like the stone-cut epitaph, remain
After the vanished voice, and speak to men.

Act IV, Sc. III.

WOMEN.

The folly of all follies
Is to be love-sick of a shadow.

Act I, Sc. V.

Queen Mary.

September 10.

MEN.

His friends would praise him, I believed
'em,
His foes would blame him, and I scorned
'em,
His friends — as Angels I received 'em,
His foes — the Devil had suborn'd 'em.

Act I, Sc. V.

WOMEN.

Pretty maiden, you should know that whether
A wind is warm or cold, it serves to fan
A kindled fire.

Act I, Sc. V.

September 11.

MEN.

He pass'd out smiling, and he walk'd upright.
His eye was like a soldier's whom the general
He looks to and leans on as his God Hath rated for some backwardness and bidd'n him

Queen Mary.

Charge one against a thousand, and the
man
Hurls his soil'd life against the pikes and dies.

Act IV, Sc. III.

WOMEN.

I love not to be called a butterfly.
Why do you call me a butterfly?

Act I, Sc. IV.

September 12.

MEN.

Action and re-action,
The miserable see-saw of our child-world,
Makes us despise it at odd hours.

Act IV, Sc. III.

WOMEN.

Mix not yourself with any plot —
Nay, if by chance you hear of any such,
Speak not thereof — no, not to your best friend,
Lest you should be confounded with it.

Act I, Sc. IV.

Queen Mary.

September 13.

MEN.

I have been a man loved plainness all my life.

Act IV, Sc. III.

WOMEN.

Madam, to have the wish before the word
Is man's good Fairy.

Act I, Sc. IV.

September 14.

MEN.

Ever gentle, and so gracious,
With all his learning —

So worshipt of all those that came across him;
The stranger at his hearth, and all his house.

Act IV, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

I have the jewel of a loyal heart.

Act I, Sc. IV.

September 15.

MEN.

His big baldness,
That irritable forelock which he rubs,

Queen Mary.

His buzzard beak and deep-incavern'd eyes
Half fright me.

Act I, Sc. IV.

WOMEN.

Ay: some waxen doll,
All red and white.

Act I, Sc. V.

September 16.

MEN.

He is every way a lesser man than Charles,
Stone-hard, ice-cold — no dash of daring in him.

Act I, Sc. V.

WOMEN.

Truth, they say, will out,
So it must last. It is not like a word,
That comes and goes in uttering.

Act III, Sc. V.

September 17.

MEN.

They call him cold,
Haughty, ay, worse.

Why, doubtless, he shows

Queen Mary.

Some of the bearing of your blue blood still —
All within measure — nay, it well becomes him.

Act I, Sc. V.

WOMEN.

Song flies, you know,
For ages;

Tut, your sonnet's a-flying ant,
Wing'd for a moment.

Act II, Sc. I.

September 18.

MEN.

To sit high
Is to be lied about.

Act I, Sc. V.

WOMEN.

Truth, a word!
The very Truth and very Word are one.
But truth of story, which I glanced at, girl,
Is like a word that comes from olden days,
And passes thro' the peoples; every tongue

Queen Mary.

Alters it passing, till it spells and speaks
Quite other than at first.

Act III, Sc. V.

September 19.

MEN.

To persecute
Makes a faith hated; and is furthermore
No perfect witness of a perfect faith
In him who persecutes; when men are tost
On tides of strange opinion, and not sure
Of their own selves, they are wroth with their own selves,
And thence with others; then, who lights
the fagot?
Not the full faith; no, but the lurking doubt.

Act III, Sc. IV.

WOMEN.

Best wisdom is to know the worst at first.

Act III, Sc. V.

September 20.

MEN.

A jest
In time of danger shows the pulse is even.

Act II, Sc. II.

Queen Mary.

WOMEN.

How many names in the long sweep of time
That so foreshortens greatness, may but hang
On the chance mention of some fool that once
Brake bread with us, perhaps.

Act III, Sc. V.

September 21.

MEN.

Courage, sir,
That makes a man or woman look their goodliest.

Act II, Sc. II.

WOMEN.

Right honest and red-cheek'd; Robin was violent,
And she was crafty — a sweet violence,
And a sweet craft. I would I were a milk-maid,
To sing, love, marry, churn, brew, bake,
and die,

Queen Mary.

Then have my simple headstone by the church

And all things lived and ended honestly.

Act III, Sc. V.

September 22.

MEN.

The man is proven by the hour

The man should make the hour, not this the man.

Act II, Sc. II.

WOMEN.

It is the heat and narrowness of the cage
That makes the captive testy, with free wing

The world were all one Araby.

Act III, Sc. V.

September 23.

MEN.

Like his cloak, his manners want the nap
And gloss of court.

Act III, Sc. V.

Queen Mary.

WOMEN.

Her majesty
Is flint of flint; you may strike fire from her,
Not hope to melt her.

Act III, Sc. VI.

September 24.

MEN.

Fine eyes — but melancholy, irresolute —
A fine beard — a very full, fine beard,
But a weak mouth, an indeterminate —

Act III, Sc. IV.

WOMEN.

Should her love —
And I have known such women, more than one —
Veer to the counterpoint, jealousy
Hath in it an alchemic force to fuse
Almost into one metal love and hate.

Act III, Sc. VI.

September 25.

MEN.

A man
Of such colossal kingdom, yet so courteous,

Queen Mary.

Except when wroth, you scarce could meet his eye
And hold your own; and were he wroth
indeed,
You held it less, or not at all. I say
Your father had a will that beat men down;
Your father had a brain that beat men down.
Act IV, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

“ Madam, a day may sink or save a realm,”
“ A day may save a heart from breaking, too.”
Act III, Sc. VI.

September 26.

MEN.

“ Does he think
Low stature is low nature, or all women’s Low as his own?”

“ There you strike in the nail.
This coarseness is a want of fantasy,
It is the low man thinks the woman low;
Sin is too dull to see beyond himself.”
Act V, Sc. II.

Queen Mary.

WOMEN.

O bubble world,
Whose colors in a moment break and fly!
Act V, Sc. II.

September 27.

MEN.

What human reason is there why my friend
Should meet with lesser mercy than myself?
Act IV, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

Hapless doom of woman happy in betrothing!
Beauty passes like a breath and love is lost
in loathing;
Low, my lute; speak low, my lute, but say the world is nothing —
 Low, lute, low!
Love will hover round the flowers when they first awaken;
Love will fly the fallen leaf, and not be overtaken;
Low, my lute! oh, low, my lute! we fade and are forsaken —
 Low, dear lute, low.
Act V, Sc. II.

Queen Mary.

September 28.

MEN.

Sin is bold as well as dull.

Act V, Sc. II.

WOMEN.

Peace is with the dead.

Her life was winter, for her spring was nupt;

And she loved much; pray God she be forgiven.

Act V, Sc. V.

September 29.

MEN.

Men now are bow'd and old, the doctors tell you,

At threescore years; then if we change at all
We needs must do it quickly; it is an age
Of brief life, and brief purpose, and brief patience.

Act III, Sc. IV.

WOMEN.

You must be sweet and supple —

She is none of those who loathe the honeycomb.

Act V, Sc. I.

Queen Mary.

September 30.

MEN.

It never will be merry world —
Till all men learn their Bibles, rich and poor.
Act V, Sc. V.

WOMEN.

I found
One day a wholesome scripture,
“ Little children, love one another.”
Act III, Sc. IV.

October.

The Foresters.

The lady loved the master well,
The maid she loved the man.

The lady gave a rose to the Earl,
The maid a rose to the man.

The Foresters.

October 1.

MEN.

Every man for the sake of the great blessed Mother in heaven, and for the love of his own little mother on earth, should handle all womankind gently, and hold them in all honor, and speak small to 'em, and not scare 'em, but go about to come at their love with all manner of homages and observances.

Act I, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

The sweet light of a mother's eye,
That beam of dawn upon the opening flower.

Act IV, Sc. I.

October 2.

MEN.

Being every inch a man, I honor every inch of a woman.

Act III, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

I will not kiss thee,
For that belongs to marriage; but I hold thee

The Foresters.

The husband of my heart, the noblest light
That ever flash'd across my life, and I Embrace thee with the kisses of the soul.

Act III, Sc. I.

October 3.

MEN.

How often in old histories have the great men striven against the stream, and how often in the long sweep of years to come must the great man strive against it again to save his country and the liberties of his people!

Act I, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

O the sacred little thing! What a shape!
What lovely arms! a rose to the man!

Act I, Sc. I.

October 4.

MEN.

That strange, starched, stiff creature.
He would grapple with a lion like the king,
and is flustered by a girl's kiss.

Act I, Sc. I.

The Foresters.

WOMEN.

Thou speakest like a fool or a woman.
Canst thou endure to be a beggar whose whole life hath been folded like a blossom in the sheath, like a careless sleeper in the down, who never hast felt a want, to whom all things, up to this present, have come as freely as heaven's air and mother's milk?

Act I, Sc. I.

October 5.

MEN.

The man is able enough — no lack of wit,
And apt in arms and shrewd in policy.
Courteous enough, too, when he wills; and yet
I hate him for his want of chivalry.
He that can pluck the flower of maidenhood
From off the stalk and trample it in the mire,
And boast that he hath trampled it.

I hate him,
I hate the man.

Act I, Sc. II.

The Foresters.

WOMEN.

The fairest flower of maidenhood
That ever blossom'd

Act I, Sc. II.

October 6.

MEN.

You gentles that live upo' manchet-bread and marchpane, what should you know o'er the food o' the poor?

Act II, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

A moment for some matter of no moment!
Well! take and use your moment, while you may.

Act II, Sc. I.

October 7.

MEN.

I believe there lives
No man who truly loves and truly rules
His following, but can keep his followers true.

I am one with mine. Traitors are rarely bred

Save under traitor kings.

Act II, Sc. I.

The Foresters.

WOMEN.

She hath a tenderness — but is too shy to show it. It is in her, in the woman, and the man must bring it out of her.

Act I, Sc. I.

October 8.

MEN.

There are no hearts like English hearts,
Such hearts of oak they be.

There are no men like Englishmen,
So tall and bold as they be.

Act II, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

There are no wives like English wives,
So fair and chaste as they be.

There are no maids like English maids,
So beautiful as they be.

Act II, Sc. I.

October 9.

MEN.

Sort! Sort! What sort? What sort of man art thou

The Foresters.

For land, not love? Thou wilt inherit the land,
And so wouldst sell thy sister.

Act II, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

Lovers hold
True love immortal.

Act II, Sc. I.

October 10.

MEN.

You lovers are such clumsy summer-flies,
Forever buzzing in your lady's face.

Act IV, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

Never,

Tho' you should queen me over all the nations

. could I stoop so low
As mate with one that holds no love is pure,
No friendship sacred, values neither man
Nor woman save as tools — God help the mark —

To his own unprincely ends.

Act IV, Sc. I.

The Foreseers.

October 11.

MEN.

He that pays not for his dinner must fight for it.

Act IV, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

You, you

Who thought to buy your marrying me with gold.

Marriage is of the soul, not of the body.

. but while

I breathe Heaven's air, and Heaven looks down on me,

And smiles at my best meaning, I remain

Mistress of mine own self and mine own soul.

Act IV, Sc. I.

October 12.

MEN.

The silent blessing of one honest man

Is heard in heaven — the wassail yells of thief

And rogue and liar echo down in Hell,

And wake the Devil.

Act III, Sc. I.

The Foresters.

WOMEN.

Time! if his backward-working alchemy
Should change this gold to silver, why, the silver
Were dear as gold, the wrinkle as the dimple.

Act IV, Sc. I.

October 13.

MEN.

You do well, Mistress Kate, to sing and to gather roses.

You be fed with titbits, you, and we be dogs that have only the bones, till we be only bones our own selves.

Act I, Sc. I.

WOMEN.

I am fed with titbits no more than you are, but I keep a good heart and make the most of it.

Act I, Sc. I.

October 14.

MEN.

Be not wroth at the dumb parchment.
Sufficient for the day, dear father!

Act I, Sc. II.

The Foresters.

WOMEN.

Love flew in at the window,

As Wealth walk'd in at the door.

“ You have come, for you saw Wealth coming,” said I.

But he flutter'd his wings with a sweet little cry.

“ I'll cleave to you, rich or poor.”

Wealth dropt out of the window,

Poverty crept thro' the door.

“ Well, now, you would fain follow Wealth,” said I,

But, he flutter'd his wings as he gave me the
lie,

“ I cling to you all the more.”

Forget him — never.
Never!
Not while the swallow skims along the
ground,
And while the lark flies up and touches
heaven!
Not while the smoke floats from the cottage roof,
And the white cloud is roll'd along the sky!
Not while the rivulet babbles by the door,
And the great breaker beats upon the beach!
Never —
Till nature, high and low, and great and small,
Forgets herself, and all her loves and hates
Sink again into chaos.

MEN.

If this life of ours
Be a good glad thing, why should we make us merry
Because a year of it is gone? but Hope Smiles from the threshold of the year to come,
Whispering, "It will be happier," and old faces
Press round us, and warm hands close with warm hands,
And thro' the blood the wine leaps to the brain
Like April sap to the topmost tree, that shoots
New buds to heaven, whereon the throstle
rock'd,
Sings a new song to the new year — and you
Strike up a song.

December 22.

MEN.

What we have to bear in mind is that, even in a Republic, there must be a guiding hand. Men of education, weight and wisdom must continue to come forward. They who will not be ruled by the rudder will in the end be ruled by the rock.

Fragment.

WOMEN.

She heard,
Heard, and not heard him; as the village girl,
Who sets her pitcher underneath the spring,
Musing on him that used to fill it for her;
Hears and not hears, and lets it overflow.

Enoch Arden.

Miscellaneous.

December 23.

MEN.

I have fought for Queen and Faith like a valiant man and true;
I have only done my duty as a man is bound to do.

Revenge.

WOMEN.

O Love, O Hope!
They come, they crowd upon me all at once —
Moved from the cloud of unforgotten things
That sometimes on the horizon of the mind
Lies folded. . . .

The Lover's Tale.

December 24.

MEN.

Fear not thou the hidden purpose of that Power which alone is great,
Nor the myriad world, His shadow, nor the silent opener of the gate.

Fragment.

Miscellaneous.

WOMEN.

If you fear,
Cast all your cares on God; that anchor holds.

Enoch Arden.

December 25.

MEN.

A man's ideal
Is high in Heaven
. . . . Not findable here.

The Sisters.

WOMEN.

God help the wrinkled children that are Christ's,
As well as the plump cheek. . . .

The Sisters.

December 26.

MEN.

Yet since he did but labor for himself,
Work without hope, there was not life in it
Whereby the man could live.

Enoch Arden.

Miscellaneous.

WOMEN.

Even now the Goddess of the Past, that takes
The heart, and sometimes touches but one string
That quivers, and is silent, and sometimes Sweeps suddenly all its half-moulder'd chords
To some old melody, begins to play
The air which pleased her first.

The Lover's Tale.

December 27.

MEN.

He was not all unhappy. His resolve
Upbore him, and firm faith, and evermore
Praying from a living source with in the will,
And beating up through all the bitter world,
Like fountains of sweet water in the sun,
Kept him a living soul.

Enoch Arden.

WOMEN.

Prayer on our part is the highest aspiration of the soul.

Fragment.

Miscellaneous.

December 28.

MEN.

Evil must come upon us headlong, if morality tries to get on without religion.

Fragment

WOMEN.

She was dark-hair'd, dark-eyed;
Oh, such dark eyes! A single glance of them
Will govern a whole life from birth to death,
Careless of all things else, led on with light
In trances and in visions, look at them
You lose yourself in utter ignorance;
You cannot find their depth, for they go back,
And farther back, and still withhold themselves
Quite into the deep soul.

The Lover's Tale.

December 29.

MEN.

The old order changeth, yielding place to new,
And God fulfills Himself in many ways.

Fragment.

Miscellaneous.

WOMEN.

More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice
Rise like a fountain night and day.

Fragment.

December 30.

MEN.

“My friends await me yonder?” “Yes.”
“Lead on then. Up the mountain?”
“Is it far?”
“Not far.” “Climb first and reach me down thy hand.”

Lord Cobham.

WOMEN.

Love is the highest we feel, therefore we must believe that God is Love. We cannot but believe that the creature is infinite, if God is infinite.

Fragment.

December 31.

MEN.

When the outer lights are darken'd . . .
The memory's vision hath a keener edge.

The Lover's Tale.

Miscellaneous.

WOMEN.

The Present is the vassal of the Past;
So that in that I have lived, do I live,
And cannot die, and am, in having been —
A portion of the pleasant yesterday,
Thrust forward on to-day.

The Lover's Tale.
